Thank you

“Dear Church Family,
Thank you for all the prayers, cards and texts over the last few months before and after my surgery (neck and pain issues and walking pneumonia). We could not ask for a more loving and caring place to call home. I know Ashley and the kids have very much appreciated the support as I was unable to do much. Thank you. You don’t know how much I truly appreciate your kindness!”

Troubling Times

We live in troubling times. I suppose that every generation and culture throughout history could say that, but as we live in the midst of our own experiences, our frustration and angst is very real. School shootings. Assassinations. Senseless violence. Unconstrained hatred. Malicious verbal assaults. Moral, political, and social division. Complete lack of restraint. Every one of these shameful behaviors has been on display just in the last couple of weeks in this country. (Is it any wonder that diagnoses of depression and anxiety are at an all-time high in America?) In light of the turbulent circumstances in which we live, what are we to do as God's people?

Much is being said on social media and in other public forums about the Christian's responsibility to act toward others in ways that are in keeping with our faith and commitment to God. That is great advice and needs to be heeded as we strive to be lights in a very dark world. However, there is another area of focus that I believe is often overlooked in times like these. When faced with adversity and discouragement, and with the responsibility to represent Christ in the midst of those trials, it is vitally important that we, as Christians, give attention to fortifying our own faith. Let's face it: as we are confronted by the brokenness of our world, it can create questions, worries, and challenges to our faith. We struggle to understand things that cannot be understood and to make sense of senseless actions. We trust in God's will but wonder how current events fit into that will. Yes, we need to be a positive force in a world filled with hate and hurt, but we cannot do that effectively unless our own faith is healthy and strong.

As you wrestle with recent events, let me encourage you to spend some time (maybe a lot of time) looking inward and upward. Spend time in prayer, laying your concerns, fears, and anxieties at the feet of the God of all comfort. Spend time in God's word, finding peace and comfort in His truth. Spend time in worship, giving thanks and praise to the Creator and Sustainer of our world. Spend time with other Christians, finding comfort and strength in the fellowship of like-minded soldiers of the cross. Then, having fortified your faith, go out into the world and make a difference for Christ!
