Be still, and know that I am God! - Psalm 46:10

The horrors of September 11, 2001, are forever etched in our collective consciousness. On what started as a normal September day, our nation was shocked as reports of hijacked jets being used as weapons of destruction spread around the world. We as a people were plunged into confusion and fear. We all turned to the Father in prayer. Even after 22 years, we still have strong memories of this uncertain time.

In our lives there are days and seasons when it feels like “earthquakes come and the mountains crumble into the sea” (Psalm 46:2); when “the oceans roar and foam” and “the mountains tremble as the waters surge” (v. 3). As much as we would like to, we cannot escape the mind-numbing, life-altering situations that we’d rather avoid.

Psalm 46 speaks to people of faith faced with extreme circumstances. Despite the adversities, these expressions of faith and trust prevail in view of God’s power and presence. He “is our refuge and strength” (v. 1). Though earthshaking events may invade our lives, our faith in God should not be shaken. “The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge” (v. 11).

May we be able to see clearly through the uncertainty and anxiety to understand that the presence of trouble doesn’t mean the absence of God. According to Psalm 46, it’s just the opposite.
